

SINAN AMSO - Graduate Lawyer

ABOUT ME

An ambitious and committed law (Hons) graduate with a genuine interest in technology and commercial law. I am seeking to obtain the graduate position at Simmonds Stewart where I can confidently learn and place my academic and professional backgrounds in context and be challenged to think about complex issues in a critical, innovative and interdisciplinary manner. My diverse professional and personal background has allowed me to become a highly adaptable individual. As a graduate from different multidisciplinary programmes, I have the unique combination of skills to navigate between law, business and science. Also, having a proven track record of professional competence at diverse work environments enabled me to interact with clients across the globe.

KEY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- Only student to undertake both part 1 and 2 Law concurrently while graduating in half the expected time of three years
- Diverse, thorough and adaptable knowledge in Law, Business and Science
- Headed the Industry Team of Chiasma, a professional nation-wide student-led organisation, and facilitated the creation of links between academia and the wider New Zealand science and technology industries
- Class representative for several university papers, liaising between students and lecturers
- Produced a 1st Class Honours Dissertation examining the doctrine of corporate veil piercing (A+) where I analysed the current state of the law and advocated for its abandonment
- Produced a 1st Class Masters thesis examining NZ companies and their commercialisation and internationalisation strategies (A-), where I gathered technical abilities of clients, analysed existing strategies and provided frameworks and recommendations.
